Among the things that drew me to the Ordway are the quality of its musical theater productions like Pirates of Penzance, The Sound of Music and A Chorus Line—featuring incredible Minnesota talent both on-stage and behind-the-scenes. And the new Concert Hall has opened up opportunities for many firsts, like kicking-off our Dance to Learn program with 600 children; opening the annual Sally Awards to the general public; hosting Governor Dayton’s Council on the Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday annual celebration; and greater access to the Flint Hills International Children’s Festival—one of the largest and best festivals of its kind in the nation.

On my first day on the job we joined Mayor Coleman in welcoming members of the state legislature. A Night with Janis Joplin was set to open at the end of the month, followed by more musical theater, spectacular world music and dance performances by Hanggai and TAIKOPROJECT, a special appearance by Pilobolus, and a Kander & Ebb Broadway Songbook. What an incredible range of events.

We were also proud to welcome over 47,000 schoolchildren into our theaters, to serve as a non-performance meeting and gathering place for businesses and civic organizations, and to be a desired venue for many performing arts groups who rented our halls.

It is an honor to be working with passionate board members and an amazing professional staff and over 300 volunteers to advance the mission of the Ordway. With your support, we are able to deliver the memories and inspirational experiences that only the arts can provide. Thank you for your generous and ongoing involvement.

Jamie Grant
President & CEO

The Ordway’s season from July 2015 through June 2016 truly was an exciting one. The first full season of the new Concert Hall confirmed that its beautiful aesthetics and extraordinary acoustics offer unmatched opportunities for the Ordway and its Resident Arts Partners, including the SPCO, the Minnesota Opera, and of course the Shubert Club.

This past season also witnessed the transition of leadership from our beloved CEO and President Patricia Mitchell in December with a series of festive events celebrating her nine years of devoted service. I confess I felt more than a little trepidation about how we could ever fill Patricia’s shoes. Fortunately, our search committee, co-chaired by Laura McCarten and David Lilly, performed brilliantly.

In March, we welcomed new President Jamie Grant to lead the Ordway in our next exciting chapter. Jamie comes to us from the Long Center in Austin, Texas, which was transformed under his leadership, and has 30 years of experience in managing a diverse array of arts organizations and facilities. The optimism and anticipation we all felt as Jamie began his new role was more than matched by Jamie’s boundless energy and enthusiasm. Jamie wasted no time in helping us focus on achieving the exceptional potential that lies ahead in collaborative partnerships, offering more days and nights on our stages with an even more diverse array of programming, and ensuring that we have the resources to make it all possible.

It was my great privilege to have chaired the board during such a dynamic time. I want to thank my fellow members on the Ordway Board of Directors for their valued leadership and friendship, and especially the Ordway staff and volunteers for their tireless devotion, without whom none of this would be possible. Most of all, let me extend very special gratitude to you, our supporters, for your generosity and commitment to this great institution.

Thank you,

Robert E. Cattanach OR Bob Cattanach
Chairman
2015 / 2016

The Sound of Music, produced by the Ordway, charmed over 40,000 patrons during the holiday season. Along with the other Ordway-created musical theater productions—The Pirates of Penzance, A Chorus Line and two Broadway Songbooks®—the Musical Theater Series engaged 65 local actors and craftspeople.

"I feel like we’ve spent the whole year raving about the Ordway’s productions—and we have—and [The Sound of Music] is yet another home run in their string of homegrown musicals."

—MINNESOTA THEATER LOVE
By popular demand, Pilobolus made their triumphant return to the Ordway in the spring of 2016. Their choreography incorporated gravity-defying movement and intensity, as well as humor and whimsy. During their two nights of performances, Pilobolus thrilled 1,794 patrons.
During the 2015-2016 school year, 47,047 students throughout Minnesota and Western Wisconsin attended a school matinee featuring a music, dance, or musical theater performance. Beyond experiencing a show at the Ordway, 3,027 schoolchildren participated in one of our in-school residencies, artist talkbacks, workshops or master classes.

"I can’t believe that we could bring our students to this fantastic venue for a global performance for so little money. This was a great opportunity for our kids!"

—ERIN ANDERSON
Parkview Center School
The Spring Fête tipped its hat to our annual Children’s Festival with the theme “Why Should Kids Have All The Fun?” Ted and Nancy Weyerhaeuser were honored for their steadfast support of the arts. And proceeds of $330,000 supported the Ordway’s arts education activities.
The 16th annual Flint Hills International Children’s Festival featured clowns and oversized balloons, musical junkyard creations writ large, and everything in between. 71,433 children and their families experienced performances by 611 artists and companies with roots in over 25 nations.

As always, the staff was very helpful, the show was fantastic and we felt very taken care of and comfortable.

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

Notes from Asia: the Vocabulary of Movement and Sound presented artistic work from the Asian and Asian-Pacific Islander American community (AAPIA), and over the course of the year engaged with 14,468 people through 36 events. Notes from Asia connected four international artists/groups—Hanggai, TAIKOPROJECT, Dengue Fever, and SEOP Dance Company—with the Twin Cities and great Minnesota community, and provided opportunities and space for local artists to deepen the impact of the project. Public performances, school matinees, community discussions, master classes, workshops, and film screenings were held throughout the season to bring the rich stories of AAPIA cultures to a wider audience.

It felt amazing to see Asian and Asian Pacific Islander performers that my children and I could relate to. We all loved every moment of it. It was empowering to see and a great conversation and opportunity to educate my kids about potential, hard work and possibilities for them.
—AUDIENCE MEMBER, Notes from Asia
PRESENTATION OF PILOBOLUS was made possible in part by the generosity of those individuals and organizations who contributed to the Patricia A. Mitchell Fund for Dance. The fund, established in 2015 in honor of Patricia’s eight-year tenure as President and CEO of the Ordway, supports the presentation and commission of Ordway contemporary dance presentations over the next two years.

In Remembrance
DEBRA ANN SIT 1960-2015

Debbie was an ardent supporter of the arts and of the Ordway, and will always be remembered as a pillar of the artistic community. She served with distinction on the Ordway board of directors for eight years, both in the Office of Secretary and as Chair of the Endowment Investment Committee. Debbie was a passionate champion of the arts, and the Ordway benefited incredibly both from her leadership and her enthusiastic support of the World Music & Dance Series.
